

I extend my heartfelt congratulations as you complete your academic journey at NID and enter a future filled with unique and endless possibilities. Throughout your time at NID, you have been continuously motivated to think critically, to think with peers, and to think for society. The time has come when you start making ends meet in unique ways as you enjoy connecting your passion with your vocation. As you leap forward, remember that your success as a creative individual lies in continuously distinguishing and choosing between the skills that can be automated and those that require human ingenuity. Your ability to tell compelling stories through your designs, to think inquisitively, and to make sound decisions will set you apart in the creator's economy era driven by decentralization and automation. Remain true to your vision, embrace challenges with resilience, and remain humble. Focusing on self-improvement will always keep you independent and enable you to navigate the complexities and uncertainties and emerge as a holistic and adaptive creator. With this, I once again congratulate each of you. I wish that every day brings you delight and wonder to live through. May you forge a meaningful path, bring people together, and lead a fulfilling life ahead.
